

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

To provide an image display device and an image display system capable of widely disclosing information on fine adjustment of image quality in each image display device of each user, centrally managing the information and mutually using the information. An image display device stores image quality adjustment values of image quality adjustment device and freely outputs the values to an FD, a user PC or a host PC connected to an internet. The image quality adjustment value of one image display device is formed in a predetermined format of file, outputted to a host PC and stored centrally in the host PC. Also, the above file or the analysis result obtained by analyzing the above file is freely inputted to another image display device through the internet.